Dear Recruitment Team,

Hope everything's going well and staying safe there. I am so excited when I see the job position, Data Governance Analyst. I would like to give a brief intro of myself first that I was graduated from University of Toronto with both Bachelor and Master's degree of engineering.

I have been following the data analytic field for several years and never stop looking for a position in data science. In my previous working experience, my main duties included not only focused on project design, but also data analysis, I have built great communication, problem solving and data-driven decision making skills and played an important team-player role in my department.

In addition, I was able to handle multiple tasks at the same time under a high-pressure environment. Strong client-facing and communication skills have also been built as part of my working manner in order to improve customers' experiences. As an entry-level data analyst, I am competent to answer business questions, as well as advise strategic marketing decisions by providing in-depth data analysis with various technical skills, such as SQL, R, python and Tableau.

From the perspective of personal development, I would like to explore my potential and continually build my expertise in a global company. And I believe that my goals of looking for a position which I am passionate about and growing up with the company resonate with your requirement for a qualified employee. Overall, I am confident that I can be a good fit through applying my professional background, data analytic techniques and great understanding of SQL and R. Please let me know if you'd be open to a conversation to discuss this position or any other opened positions. I'm happy to provide you with any additional information you might need. I look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,
JiaXi Wang
